5 Procedural Principles

The OHS policy will be implemented through the SHE Management System which has been designed to provide continuous improvement and best practice in OHS through application of the following principles:

- Compliance with relevant health and safety legislation, regulations, standards and codes of practice;
- Provide a safe and healthy working environment by promoting employee and contractor welfare, reducing the impact of workplace injuries and illnesses, supportive rehabilitation and equitable injury management;
- Provision of professional and competent resources (internal and external) to develop, implement, maintain and continually improve OHS practices and processes;
- Identification of workplace hazards and their effective management in order to minimise potential risk of harm to stakeholders;
- Assigned accountabilities for OHS performance across all levels of personnel within the organisation;
- Commitment to the establishment of measurable objectives and targets aimed to reduce and or eliminate work related injuries/illnesses;
- Provision of consultation and communication and relevant training for employees, labour hire personnel, contractors and their representatives relating to workplace safety and health matters.
